

DESPITE THE DIFFICULTIES OF THE PANDEMIC, OUR TEAM AT THE SCHOOL IN GUATEMALA HAS PERSISTED

The school has opened with a hybrid model, offering sports, music, art, computer lessons and chess lessons in smaller groups. Due to government restrictions, academic lessons continue in the online format and with homework packets for those families without internet. We are hoping these restrictions will end when the new school year starts in January; they are partially lifted already with small groups now attending in person and once again having lunch and snacks at the centre. For others in need we are delivering food packets to their homes. It has been a tough year for the teachers and the students, but they are persisting for the sake of hundreds of children.

Mayte and Arianna attend these special classes. The pandemic has been very hard for their family economically which of course results in problems in the home, not the least of which is undernourishment. The school is a place where they can learn new skills, feel safe and escape their harsh reality and have at least one healthy meal per day.

Before the pandemic
